

What is Joomla!

Joomla! is a content management system that makes it easier to build websites. It is useful for very diverse purposes ranging from simple personal web sites and blogs to complex corporate web applications.

News

There are many ways to stay informed with Joomla!. It's easy to do. Just visit our home page to find three important sources of information:

- You will find important announcements;
- There is a link to the Joomla! Team Blog and a way to subscribe to blog postings via email;
- There is also a link to community news, also available via an RSS feed.

Conclusion

The Joomla! Project is an important effort that helps people all around the world build websites for communicating with others. Joomla! means “All Together”, “As a Whole”, a reflection of what the Joomla! Project really is: a collaboration with many freely contributing to the Joomla! Community.

Joomla! Working Groups

Joomla! Working Groups focus on a specific area of Joomla! working closely with the core team. There are currently five working groups:

- The Development Working Group works on continually enhancing and debugging Joomla!
- The Documentation Working Group works on maintaining up to date documentation.
- The Sites and Infrastructure Working Group maintains an efficient environment for everyone in Joomla!
- The Translation Working Group makes Joomla! available all over the world.
- The Foundation Working Group is in charge of media & marketing, event management, and the Open Source Matters (OSM) Foundation.

How can You help

Joomla! has available that which community members freely make available. We welcome your involvement, too. Consider helping answer questions in the forums; assist with the documentation effort; report bugs and propose fixes; attend Joomla! Day events; participate with, or start, a Joomla! Users Group in your city; and support Joomla! financially by clicking the Support Joomla! Banner at the top of each of Joomla!'s web pages.
